WOMEN GET INTO OKLAHOMA SCRAP AND JOIN WALTON

NEW COMPLICATIONS AS LEGISLATURE GETS LINED UP.

TO DEFY FORCE

Legislators Say That "Neither Whim Nor Force" Will Stay Them.

BULLETIN.
Oklahoma City.—The last troops on duty here were demobilized Saturday afternoon from Governor J. C. Walton. About 125 officers and men were affected. Adjutant General Barrett said that martial law has not been lifted. He said that troops are on duty in Sulphur, Shawnee and Tulsa, where military courts are in session, but that their number is nominal and that they are confined to acting as court attachés.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Oklahoma City, Okla.—Oklahoma's tangled skein of political chaos assumed further complications today as members of the state legislature prepared for their second attempt to convene in extraordinary session to consider impeachment charges against Governor J. C. Walton.

Legislators also reported already gathering in Oklahoma City for the assembly on Oct. 17 in response to a call issued last night by W. D. McBe, of Stephens county, heading what is a majority of the lower house members. Attention last night was focused on the executive mansion with the expectation that Governor Walton would define his attitude toward the meeting.

What Will Governor Do?
In the absence of an official statement, doubt was expressed in some quarters that the governor would adopt the military measures by which he prevented the lawmakers from meeting at their own call on Sept. 29.

From well-informed sources came the report that Aldrich Blake, the executive counselor, would not consent to such stringent tactics. Some went so far as to say that as a last resort he would recommend that the governor himself call the legislature to "normal" session.

Women Join Governor.
Meanwhile, a new element entered the situation with the announcement by a group of women that they will join forces with Governor Walton in his effort to prevent the legislature from meeting. A considerable number of women passed in last Tuesday's election.

Hearing for a permanent injunction on the governor's contention that the election was illegal. Inasmuch as it had been postponed by executive decree, it is set for next Tuesday.

The legislators declared last night that they will "neither whim nor force" will stop them, since they have been called to meet by command of the people.

Gould Widow Sails to Wed Son of Late Mate, Says Dame Rumor

Mrs. George J. Gould Sr. and George J. Gould Jr.

New York.—Rumor and truth seem to have one thing in common. Crushed to earth they will rise again. The late Mrs. Gould, widow of the late J. P. Morgan, is said to be planning to marry her son, George J. Gould Jr., on Oct. 17.

And one of the busiest little rising rumors we have seen is the one that announces that Mrs. Gould, who was married to J. P. Morgan, is said to be planning to marry her son, George J. Gould Jr., on Oct. 17.

At one time, Dame Rumor points to the fact that Mrs. Gould has called for Europe without her children as grounds for believing that the marriage is near. She is known to have decided views against leaving one's children in the care of others. They have been with her constantly in her travels to date. Hence, her move in leaving the children at her Manhattan Island home in charge of a complete governess is a point of significant interest.

Two statements were made by Charles H. Webb, husband of the dead woman, others were issued by Dr. William J. Meyer, the physician who attended her a month prior to her death.

Mr. Webb said he had been so overcome by the weakened appearance of his wife the night before her death that he could not bear to see her again when the end came, and therefore went into another room to pray.

The denial of Kufahl that he had aided in the poisoning and the assertion that he did not believe Schaude was poisoned caused Sheriff Wylie to attempt to establish what lawyers call the corpus delicti.

STRESEMANN GETS NEW CABINET TO TRY ONCE MORE

HARD STRUGGLE TO GET MEN TO SERVE GOVERNMENT.

CHAOS IN BAVARIA

Cabinet Announced This Morning Made Up of Many Parties.

BULLETIN.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
London.—Chancellor Stresemann in his speech today said, according to the Berlin correspondence of the Central News, that the Reichstag would be asked to renounce its right for a long time and grant powers to the cabinet, much greater than had ever before been given to a cabinet anywhere.

Berlin.—Chancellor Stresemann today outlined the pattern of his new cabinet, in which he will act as minister of foreign affairs as well as chancellor, with Dr. Hans Luther taking the portfolio of minister of finance and Herr Koeth that of public economy.

The cabinet as now announced follows: Chancellor and minister of foreign affairs, Dr. Gustav Stresemann; Minister of the interior, Wilhelm Sollmann; Minister of finance, Dr. Hans Luther; Minister of Labor, Richard Baumbach; Minister of Public Economy, Dr. Koeth; Minister of Justice, Gustav Radbruch; Minister of Reichswehr, Dr. Otto Gessler; Minister of post, Herr Hoffer; Minister of communications, Rudolph Oeser; Minister of occupied regions, Johannes Fuchs; Minister of reconstruction, Robert Schmidt. The post minister of supplies remains unfilled.

Irritated Chancellor.
When Chancellor Stresemann presented his reconstructed cabinet to the Reichstag today, he was nettled by interruptions from the opposition parties and once turned to the president, Paul Loebe, with a request that order be restored.

Although Chancellor Stresemann's fourth-party coalition was being resuscitated this morning, Reichstag circles professed to have little hope.

RAILROADS MAKE READY FOR WINTER

St. Paul Fits Engine Cabs With Curtains and Replaces Steam Coils.

The C. M. & St. Paul railroad employees here are busy preparing for winter. All steam lines, 100 in all, are being tested and put in shape for the coming cold weather. The engine cabs are being equipped with side curtains and the steam coils are being replaced with new ones. New running boards are being fitted.

The St. Paul line has been doing heavy running repairs on all of their engines and at the present time they have two engines in the local shop being torn down for complete overhauls.

George Ryan, foreman at the roundhouse, is expecting a gang of men almost any day to tear the turntable down and replace worn parts. All bearings and wheels will be replaced and new metal strips placed on the circular track. It is estimated the work will take about two weeks. The expected work will have their own special work train on which they carry all up to date tools.

Fast Cleaning Method.
Fast cleaning is done on the locomotives by heavy oil, kerosene and water being mixed together and forced from a special machine out of a small nozzle in a pipe and sprayed over the engine. The heat and force of the mixture cause the dirt to fall off the locomotive and as a result all corners are cleaned thoroughly. Then the engine is wiped and is ready for service again.

Labor has been occurring during the past two weeks at the roundhouse.

New Store Room Orderly.
Henry Leo, storekeeper at the roundhouse, is well pleased with the new store room which was built last winter. Everything is clean and easy to find whereas usually the store room in a roundhouse is cluttered with odds and ends scattered here and there. Everything has its place down here and can be found in an incredibly short time.

All of the old planking at the entrance to the turntable is being removed and will be replaced with new planks and drains. A gutter will be installed to take care of the water.

Northwestern Shop News.
The fire knocking job at the roundhouse is being done by negroes. It is claimed that the heat and gas from the glowing coals and hot ashes do not affect them as it does a white man.

Compressed air is used extensively at the Northwestern roundhouse. The turntable is operated with it and functions with the same ease as if it were on wheels. Air pressure is used for holding heavy parts for the engines thus doing away with the dangerous practice of using hand jacks. Fully two-thirds of the men employed at the roundhouse have their own autos which they use to go to and from work. A work car makes regular trips to and from the roundhouse to the South Janesville yards and those men who do not have their own cars are enabled to ride to and from work that way.

The work of unloading the coal for use by the division is proceeding rapidly.

1924 BUDGET IS BEFORE COUNCIL

City Manager's Recommendations Expected to Play Large Part in Meeting Monday.

With the big task of drafting the city's budget for 1924 docketed as the principal item of business, the city council will meet in bi-weekly session at the city hall at 7:30 Monday night, the meeting being considered one of the most important of any held since the new form of government went into power last April.

Average taxpayer is anxious to know how much he will have to dig into his pockets for next January to pay the cost of city, county and state government, and the form of the new municipal budget will give him some idea of what his taxes are going to compare with this year's as the city tax list is the lion's share of the annual payments.

The new plan of organization proposed by City Manager Henry Truxler is expected to play a vital part in the councilmen's deliberations and his recommendations are expected to be largely accepted. Mr. Truxler probably will have proposals for reductions in certain funds and increases in others.

The city manager has on file the estimates of all departments on how much money they will require in 1924 and it is understood practically all of them, including the schools, are asking for more than they received this year. The chief item understood to have been recommended the appropriation of enough money to pay four additional men, so that the department will be given every third day off or adopt the two-platoon system.

The city manager and city clerk-treasurer have been devoting considerable time the past week to a check-up on expenses in the various departments for the first nine months of next year's needs.

With the budget coming up as the most important matter at Monday's meeting, attention will also be given to the passage of ordinances abolishing the board of health and the water works board. City Attorney Roger E. Cunningham has instructed at the last meeting that measures for presentation at the meeting Oct. 8.

The American Legion's request for immediate removal of the honor roll board in front of the park, the milk ordinance, and licenses, are other matters expected to come up at the meeting.

THEATER COLLAPSE STILL IN THE AIR

Nothing Definite So Far as to Responsibility for Tragedy.

Testimony of T. S. Willis, contractor, in charge of construction of the wrecked Saxe theatre is expected to be the climax of the coroner's inquest held to investigate the death of Claude Cochrane, when the theatre collapsed last Wednesday evening. There will be about two more days of testimony before the case is given to the jury.

Evidence is expected from the Hays brothers, who constructed the theatre, and the contractor, Willis, who furnished the steel fabrication work and designed the truss work. The Saxe Brothers, owners, will be called along with Contractor Willis and the construction superintendent, Joe Brady and Johnson. It is hoped that A. M. Schilling, still in Mercy hospital from injuries suffered when the theatre collapsed on Sept. 18, will be able to testify.

Whether the jury can arrive at a verdict to fix the responsibility seems to depend greatly on what Willis has to say to the stand. The case has proceeded to a point where the main interest is centered in the engineering work, the construction of the support of the truss, and the changes made in the blocks designed to hold the truss. The theory, advanced by the state engineers of the Wisconsin Industrial commission has produced two probable causes of the tragedy.

Disregarding the primary cause, all evidence thus far submitted, goes to show that no one, the architect, state commissioners or local authorities, has admitted the plans or specifications for the building. Limited inspections were made and from the start to the present status, it is decidedly apparent that each party concerned in the fixing of the responsibility of the accident refuses to venture an opinion as to cause.

Plans Insufficient.
The architect is striving to impress the importance of changes from their original plans. This is also true of the state engineers and commission agents, even though both admit the plans were insufficient. Attorneys for the owners resist any implication that a "cheap theatre" was desired and it is anticipated that the Saxe Brothers will testify they called upon the architects for a "full and complete building"—including the checking of engineering questions.

The steel contractors will be asked if they checked the plans or "assumed someone else did."

All witnesses dealing with the inspection and checking have all agreed to "pass the buck" along under the theory someone else "did the checking." The owners are expected to take the attitude that they built the building as a complete job with full protection to the public. There was no written contract between the Saxe Brothers and the Martin Tullgren and Sons Co., over the building. It appears the owners told the Milwaukee architect to "go ahead and produce a building for a theatre."

Additional experts may be called to testify on Wednesday. District Attorney S. G. Statowich's statement is that through testimony of workmen and 10 more witnesses can be called. If more evidence is desired from building experts, they can be called by attorneys interested in the outcome.

HIS MASCOT IS "13" STRUNG ALONG ALL THROUGH LIFE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Monroe.—The number 13 never has held forth any ill luck for Emory Odell, who has retired as postmaster here after 13 years of continuous service.

For many years he has obtained automobile license number 13 in Green County. This was issued at his own preference.

On Oct. 13, this year, Mr. Odell will have been in the newspaper business a quarter of a century. He states that when he first started his daily paper, the Monroe Evening Times, he had no money, and went to the bank to borrow $100. He was met with the answer that he was not known well enough to be advanced credit. He was told he must obtain accommodation endorsements among the business men for his note.

Young Odell took his note around town and presently came back to the bank with 13 signatures on his note. He obtained his money. Emory Odell has one of the finest newspaper buildings in the state and one of the best of smaller city newspapers. His newspaper is one of the sights of Monroe. And many visitors come there to see the fine decorations of its interior.

He will do with his fine building when he goes out of the newspaper business, some day, Mr. Odell said, at one time: "When I go out of the newspaper business, I will build a bank."

Monroe being a prosperous town with one of the most flourishing newspapers in the state, who can predict that the editor's prediction may come true?

PERMITS ISSUED FOR 5 NEW HOUSES
Hathorn to Erect Two on Highland Avenue—Others Plan Work.

New dwellings started are as follows:
H. E. Hathorn, two $4,000 frame houses at 1515 and 1521 Highland avenue, each 24 by 26.
E. S. Barker, Benton avenue, $3,000 frame, 30 by 38.
J. T. Lee, 384 Galena street, $2,500 frame, 24 by 28.

STEALS THE STOLEN GOODS AND NOW?
Ashland, Wis.—Is it burglary to burglarize a burglar's storehouse and steal stolen goods? It is, although some courts of the Madison district evidently imagine that stolen goods are fair game. Hundreds of dollars worth of stolen property was discovered in a shack in the woods 10 miles from Mellen, owned by the Storm brothers, burglary suspects, when officers visited their shack some time ago.

Among the goods stored and found several sacks of flour stolen from a store in Mellen, according to identification.

The flour was left in the shack when the officers departed. When they returned a few days later the flour was gone. The thief has not yet been apprehended. No clues were left behind.

UTILITY SERVICE
What Dollar You Spend Buys More Value?

What is a Utility?
A public utility is an agency formed to serve the public with commodities of essential value to modern life, like gas, or electric service. It is "affected with a public interest." For this reason its service, its charges and its general conduct become the concern of the state, and the Railroad Commission regulates and supervises all utility's acts.

The public utility is part of the structure upon which modern standards of living are founded. It affects the comfort, convenience and prosperity of the individual and of the community.

It owes a duty to the public—to serve well at reasonable rates. The community owes a duty—to pay fair rates which will keep the company able to serve well, and to consider the utility as a co-worker in building a progressive and prosperous community.

ELKHORN

MRS. GRANT HARRINGTON.
Elkhorn—Rev. Lucian E. Osgood, Brodhead, and Mrs. Mary A. Pauley, Spring Prairie, have applied to the county clerk for a marriage license. Rev. Osgood is pastor of the Congregational church at Brodhead. Harold F. Oltz and Helen E. Reed, both popular Elkhorn young people, have also made application for a license.

AT THE MAJESTIC.
Four stars, Noah Leary, Marguerite Daw, Tully Marshall and Pat O'Malley, contribute to the success of "The Living Truth." This story is woven around the sensational expose of circumstantial evidence. This is the story of a newspaper reporter who defies the political boss of the county and thereby makes his daughter, and of a father who casts off his own son to make an adopted boy the beneficiary of his estate.
William S. Hart, long a favorite with Jamesville fans, is to be shown in "The Living Truth" at the Majestic. This is a western picture of railroad life showing the star in his customary western attitudes.

AT THE APOLLO.
Claire Windsor, one of the screen stars, is the leading woman in "The Little Church Around the Corner." This is the romance between a minister and a society girl, a strike in which angry mobs go rioting and the performance of miracles of genuine sentiment. The picture is adapted from the well known stage play by Charles Whelan. The minister is torn between the people of his wealthy parish in the city. The mine owner's daughter, is a society girl, who is torn between the mine owner and the people of the city. A thrilling rescue from a burning vessel is effected along with the other dangers of the sea. There is a triangle in the story that of two men, both pals, and a girl, only this triangle has different angles than most of the pictured screen triple affairs. J. P. McGowan and Helen Holmes are the stars.
Native atmosphere and melodies will be introduced by Vienna Hawaiian artists appearing. Thursday, Vienna appears at each performance with the native artists. This group of musicians offers a variety of songs to suit the tastes of all music lovers. The usual four acts of vaudeville with a feature picture starring one of the prominent screen players, will be offered Friday and Saturday.

LOOKAROUND LEAVING.
Chief Angus Lookaround has resigned his position with the Frank Holton company and expects to leave Chicago the first of November. His leaving is greatly regretted. He is a great athlete, a fine musician, and withal is very popular in Elkhorn. He has been long to one of the prominent families of the Shawano tribe, he is a Carlisle graduate, and his two sisters graduated from Haskell. Lookaround was a member of the football team that made Carlisle famous a few years since and also excels in lacrosse and baseball. Under his coaching last year's high school football team made a record and he has already developed a strong Legion team for this season.
P. M. is Surprised.

One of the pleasant events of the week occurred Friday evening when the postoffice employees surprised the retiring postmaster, F. M. Porter, at his home. The number included the office forces, city and rural carriers and the new postmaster, Dr. S. C. Goff. The evening of social enjoyment was followed by refreshments and a leather-traveling bag was left with Mr. Porter as a token of appreciation and good fellowship that has existed during his eight and one-half years of service. Mr. Porter succeeded John E. Snyder, Jr., and has been a postmaster, efficient and obliging official and retires with the goodwill of the patrons of the office.

Resigns His Position.
Earl J. Harkness has resigned his position with the Frank Holton company and goes to Omaha, Neb., Nov. 1, where he has a desirable position with an electrical establishment. Mr. Harkness has been the vocal soloist with the Holton-Elkhorn band for the past two years and his musical talent will be greatly missed by Elkhorn audiences. The going of Mr. Harkness has been generally regretted as they have made many friends in this place during their residence here.

Finishing Road.
If the winter is favorable until the latter part of October, the Elkhorn-Burdell road, route 20, will be finished. B. B. Birdall has it paved from Spring Prairie to Ganz brothers' corner; this is about 2 1/2 miles. The work has started at the Racine county line and they are

MANAGER OBTAINS COAL REDUCTION

55-Cent Cut on Water Department Fuel Is Brought About.

One of the first accomplishments of the new city manager toward saving money for the city was effected this week when he obtained a new agreement with the company furnishing coal for the water department whereby a saving of from $30 to $50 a month will result.

The city was under contract to buy Illinois screenings for the pumping station at $1.85 per ton at the mines, the manager said. The contract was made after a test had been made with a carload of the company's coal in which it was found a million gallons could be pumped on $4.40 worth of coal. The manager said that with a new contract where the contract of $1.85 was for screenings. Recently it developed that the cost of fuel per million gallons had climbed to $7.40, so the manager got into communication with the company and finally succeeded in getting a representative here. After considerable discussion, the company agreed to cut the contract price from $1.85 to $1.30 a ton, which is a saving of 55 cents a ton. When it is considered that the pumping station uses from three to three and one-half tons of coal a day, the saving will amount to $150 a month. The manager said that the new contract will now drop back to somewhere around $6.40 per million gallons.

30-Piece Band to Templar Conclave

With its band of 30 pieces in the uniform of the order, Janesville Commandery, No. 2, of the Knights Templar, will leave Tuesday morning for the meeting of the grand commandery at Milwaukee to be held the 9th and 10th. Dr. R. J. Hart, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements, said that the members are trying to have a record attendance at the conclave. Janesville commandery is one of the oldest in the state and has been up to official record work.

that it could long remain office and was of the opinion that the dictatorship was only a question of time. The chancellor's plans for a non-partisan cabinet of four ministers was laid aside because the coalition leaders were desirous of preserving party interests and prestige. He also found that none of the industrial experts which he approached was anxious to enter a cabinet that would inevitably have on its hands a battle with the Reichstag.

Hostility Marked. The hostility with which the chancellor was greeted by the Reichstag was marked by the pronounced nervousness displayed in the ranks of the four government parties' pressages breakers and the coalition leaders' efforts to salvage Germany with a socialist-bourgeois ministry.

The consensus of opinion in political circles is that unless he succeeds in obtaining a cabinet immediately he will be confronted with an acute crisis within a week.

The chancellor reproached the Reichstag for its "unconstructive" attitude in refusing to lend the government the services of their leaders and in failing otherwise to come to his rescue.

Defends Ruhr Policy. His speech was occupied mainly with a defense of his Ruhr policy and with the new system of taxation and contained no definite reference to his program of economic dictatorship measures for which he is seeking authority from the Reichstag.

VON KAHN ENJOINS RAISING BEER PRICE. Munich, Bavaria.—Dr. von Kahn, the military dictator, has enjoined the Bavarian beer association from raising prices of beer in order to be prescribed severe punishment for the raising of prices by brewers or inn keepers.

Plans to attempt to reestablish the Bavarian monarchy are untrue, the dictator declared. "A strong firm Bavaria means a powerful column to the support of the German empire of the entire country. All patriotic citizens should hold together in the interests of the united Germany of the future."

VON KAHN NOT IN FAVOR OF A NEW MONARCHY. [Associated Press.] Munich.—Dr. von Kahn, Bavarian military dictator, today declared that the reports that he favored restoration of the monarchy were without foundation. He said that the contrary stood for the preservation of a strong state authority in the interests of the entire republic.

TO REVISE THE RUHR. [Associated Press.] Paris.—Methods of deliveries of Ruhr industries and for reviving the Ruhr industries were discussed by Gen. DeGoutte, French commander in the Ruhr; Hugo Stinnes and other German industrial leaders at yesterday's conference in Dusseldorf, says Havas dispatch from Dusseldorf today.

French officials circles, commenting on visit of Herr Stinnes said that the visit of the German industrial leader to the convention of the Ruhr was quite welcome to come to Dusseldorf and discuss with the Ruhr authorities provisional methods for resumption of deliveries in the Ruhr. He said that the French government strongly objected to any attempt by the German industrialists to discuss the repatriation problem as a whole.

Here he met another cousin, daughter of the uncle. Orpha with her promptly fell in love only to learn that the other Edgar was understood to be an accepted suitor. This Edgar and Orpha quarreled. In this house there was a mystery in the main stairs, steps other than the one's own. The stairs as the one who waited and a breath of cold air blown on one from some mysterious and unaccountable source. The two male cousins and it was understood that the one married the other. The uncle is ill and there is no hope for his recovery. Edgar, who was the story, spends much of his time in the sick room. Uncle Quenton died suddenly after being given a strong medicine. His will is missing and search is made for the person suspected of having administered poison. There were two wills and the one to have left the property in equal shares between Orpha and Quenton, while the other left it all to Edgar. Neither could be found. An inquest was held on the death of the uncle.

"And what did you see there?"

"Your cousin standing?"

"No, he was gone."

"How gone? Could he not have been in your uncle's room?"

"Not then."

"Why do you say 'not then'?"

"Because while I looked I could hear his footstep at the other end of the house rounding the corner where the main hall meets the little one in which his room is situated."

"My God! I had forgotten this!"

I had been very anxious to know how Uncle had fared since I left him in such a state of excitement; whether he was sleeping or awake, and whether he was listening to the words of the doctor. I had been so busy with my own matters that I had not time to go to his room. But a meaning sinister if not definite had been given to this natural impulse by the way Edgar's voice fell as he uttered that word stopped; and from that moment I recognized him for my enemy, either believing in his guilt or wishing others to do so. I had been so busy with my own matters that I had not time to go to his room. But a meaning sinister if not definite had been given to this natural impulse by the way Edgar's voice fell as he uttered that word stopped; and from that moment I recognized him for my enemy, either believing in his guilt or wishing others to do so. Returning to his direct investigation, the coroner led the witness back to the time preceding his entrance into the hall. "You were listening from your room; that room was dark; you were no longer watching the clock which had not yet struck yet; perhaps you can give us some idea of how long your cousin was there?"

"I did not look at my watch; I did not need to. The clock was striking three."

"Three! The jury will note the hour."

"Why did he say that—the jury will note the hour? The hour was harmless. Everything I did that night was harmless. What did he mean then by the hour? The mystery of it troubled me—a mystery I was careful to leave for the present just where it was."

MOTHER OF LARGE FAMILY

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Other Mothers

Windom, Minn.—"I was so run-down that I was just good for nothing. I was to become the mother of my ninth child, and I thought I did not have the strength to go through with it. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has surely done all I could ask it to do. I am telling all my friends about it. I have a nice big baby girl and am feeling fine. You may use this letter to help other sick mothers."—Mrs. C.A. MOORE, Box 634, Windom, Minn.

My First Child

Glen Allen, Ala.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bearing-down pains. I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor recommended the Vegetable Compound to me after I had taken doctor's medicines without much benefit. I have relieved my pains and given me strength. I recommend it and give you permission to use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. L.A. RYS, Glen Allen, Alabama.

lingered at your uncle's door before starting down the hall."

"No, I should not like to do that."

"Five minutes?"

"I cannot say."

"Long enough to have entered that hall and come out again?"

"You ask too much. I am not ready to swear to that."

"Very good; I will not press you."

But the suggestion had been made. And for purposes linked with the mystery of which I have just spoken. Glancing at Mr. Jackson, I saw him writing in his little book. He had noted the fact. I was alone in my apprehension which, like a giant shadow thrown from some unknown quarter, was reaching slowly over to envelop me. When I was ready to listen again, it was to hear:

"What did you do then?"

"I went to bed."

"Did you see or hear anything more of your cousin that night?"

"No, not until the early morning when we were all roused by the news which Wealthy brought to every door, that Uncle was very much worse and that the doctor should be sent for."

"Toll us where it was you met him then?"

"In the hall near Uncle's door—the one standing 2-2 on the check."

"How did he look? Was there anything peculiar in his appearance or manner?"

"He was fully dressed."

"And you?"

"I had no time to do more than wrap a dressing-gown about me."

"At what time was this? You remember the hour?"

"I don't know. I was in the morning, any one can tell you that."

"And he was fully dressed. In morning clothes or evening?"

"He was in evening dress, he was to dinner the night before."

"It was true; I had not gone to bed that night. There was too much on my mind. But to them it would look as if I had sat up ready for the expected alarm."

"Was he in these same clothes when you finally entered your uncle's room?"

"Certainly; there was no time then for changing."

These questions might have been addressed to me instead of to him. They would have been answered with as much truth; but the suggestiveness would have been lacking and in this I recognized my second enemy. I now knew that the coroner was against me.

A few persons there may have recognized this fact also. But they were all too much in sympathy with Edgar to resist it. I made no show of doing so nor did I glance again at Orpha to see the effect on her of these attacks leveled at me with so much subtlety. I felt the humiliation of the moment, that unless I stood cleared of every suspicion, I could never look her again in the face.

Meanwhile the inquiry had reached the event for which all were waiting—the destruction of the one will and the acknowledgment by the dying man that the scepter which held the other was empty.

"Were you near enough to see the red mark on the one he had ordered burned?"

"Yes, I look at it."

"And you see it before?"

TODAY'S RECIPES

Bran Muffins—One cup bran, one cup flour, one cup sour milk, three-fourths teaspoon soda, two spoons shortening, one egg, one-half teaspoon baking powder. This makes about eight muffins.

Pot Roast—Select a round shoulder of English cut, or pot roast, with some fat in it. Into a roaster of kettle with a cover that fits tightly, put a small piece of butter and cut up a little onion in it; after it has fried a few minutes add the pot roast, turning it until it is browned on both sides. Then put on the cover of the roaster or kettle, using no water and turning the gas very low. The meat cooks in its own juice and is much more tender than when cooked in water. Within half an hour if the gas is turned low enough upon taking the cover off you will find plenty of juice to cook the roast in. It takes two or three hours to cook. When it is done allow it to cook down.

Fruit Salad—Take oranges, apples, bananas, dates, etc. and mix with salad dressing; is made as follows: Eight teaspoons sugar, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons flour and one teaspoon cornstarch. Mix dry ingredients, add one egg, stir this into a pint of hot milk in double boiler, adding piece of butter and either vinegar or salt to taste.

Date Pudding—One package of dates, one cup walnuts, three eggs, one cup sugar, three tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon baking powder. Bake in a shallow pan in slow oven 25 or 30 minutes. Serve with whipped cream. It will serve six persons.

To Keep Starch From Sticking—A teaspoon of salt put in starch when cooking prevents it from sticking when ironing.

To Keep Clothes From Molding—After sprinkling clothes, place them in a basket and cover with a heavy blanket. It will then be safe to leave them over night even in warm weather.

To Replace Handies—Save your cork! When handles or rings come off tins or lids replace with a cork. Fasten on by putting a small screw through the upper side of the lid. Spread the cork down on its point. Such a handle stays on tight, does not slip in the fingers and does not heat.

To Prolong Life of Tubetiles—The life of a table cloth can be prolonged indefinitely by pasting strong pieces of muslin to the under side where it will bend over edges and corners.

To Burned Kettle—If your aluminum kettle gets burned, invert it over the flame of your gas stove for a few minutes and it will be as bright as new.

Heart and Home Problems

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON. Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

MR. JOSEPH S.: I forwarded your letter.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 17 years old and smart, my hair bobbed. It is brown and very straight. I cannot comb it myself. The reason I don't get it bobbed is because my father will not let me. She says my hair is too nice to cut off. How can I persuade my mother to let me bob it?

"Am I too old to get it bobbed?"

Will it grow out all right?

Since your mother is determined not to let you have your hair bobbed, there is probably little you can do to influence her. Perhaps, if you stick to your point and ask her long enough her resistance will give out and you will gain her consent.

You are not too old to have it bobbed.

Yes, it would grow out all right. Since you have a fine hair bobbed, usually comes in thicker and better after bobbing.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl 17 and was going with a fellow 19 for four months. Then we had a quarrel on account of some girls that he was going out with at the time he was going with me. My friends came and told me things that they had heard about him and it hurt me so because I loved him and I think I can't love any other fellow except him. I don't know how to forget him. Please advise me how to forget him and get on with other friends.

FAY ANN.

It is not wise to pay too much attention to the things that are carried by friends. If you believe from your experiences with the boy that he is not to be trusted, of course that is a different matter and it is only natural for you to feel that your suspicions have been confirmed when you hear criticisms of the boy's character. But if you have been trustworthy and respectable, do not condemn him too quickly because of things you hear against him.

It takes time to forget. Some one you love, but if you try to forget yourself in other people and other things it will not be long before you find you can live without the boy who means so much to you now. Other friendships cannot be forced, because they come about naturally. Simply be as happy as you can while you are waiting for some one else to like you and take you places.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of 17 and in love with a boy of 18. As I have finished high school my parents want me to go away to school this fall, but I can't think of going and leaving my boy friend, as we surely love one another. But my father says he will soon tire of me and look for a new girl. It seems as if I couldn't live without him.

Please tell me what to do. Should I please my parents by going away to school? Or should I stay for my boy friend?

SERIOUS LITTLE GIRL.

By all means go away to school and take advantage of the great opportunity offered you. Your love is a weak thing if it will not stand such a test. Education is of such an advantage that it should not be thrown lightly aside. I am sure that if you choose a college you will never regret it. To go away does not mean that you will have to give up the boy you love. If he really loves you he will wait for you, and while he is waiting he will study a world so that he will be better able to make you happy when the time comes that it is advisable for you to marry.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise mothers about the care of their children, of course, on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

Mrs. J. M. J. writes:

"Will you please tell me what you think of my baby? She weighed seven pounds eight ounces at birth; is now five months old and weighs 15 pounds eight ounces. I nurse her every three hours and at 10 and 2 o'clock.

"Now the trouble is she never will sleep from 6 o'clock more than two hours and a half in the daytime; usually catnaps of about 30 minutes. I put her to bed at 8 and she is always ready to go when I wake her up to three times before 10 p.m. After that feeding, will usually sleep until 2. She doesn't cry but just coos and is wide awake. She is not a very cross baby, will stay on the bed most of the time, and though I take her out every afternoon the fresh air doesn't help her to sleep.

"I am giving her a teaspoon of orange juice a day and other her water, but she won't take very much. The doctor says she is a nervous baby and will outgrow this weakness, but when I hear of other babies of four months or more sleeping all night through I wonder what I have failed to do."

Answer:

These are the kind of problems that are stickers. From her weight there can be very little wrong with the food. She has fresh air, no doubt, and she is in a well ventilated room. Do you play with her at night? Playing with babies before their bedtime is sleep wrecking, especially nervous inclined children. Though personally I think calling a baby nervous is somewhat begging the question. The poor old nerves have many burdens to bear.

Try feeding her every four hours, giving her a stomach more chance to rest. Positively only once at night. Give the orange juice just as you have. Put the baby on the bed about one hour before sleep time and take off her clothing except band and diaper, and let her roll and kick and coo to her heart's content, letting her strictly alone. Then sponge off quickly, put on fresh night clothes, put her in bed in a dark and quiet room. These are simple suggestions, but may help.

Beauty Chats

CARELESSNESS.

Perhaps because I think about it so much I am prejudiced, but it seems to me that most of the people who aren't beautiful are that way because they are careless. Count the number of men you meet on the street in any one day, whose ears stick out from their heads in the ugliest manner. Could anyone, man or woman, look attractive or intelligent with protruding ears? Women can cover them up with hair, men can't. Yes, wearing a top hat at night will cure this trouble, or if it is very bad, a simple, cheap, little operation by a good surgeon will make the ears lie flat and properly against the head.

Thin, mussed-looking hair is always the result of carelessness. The market is full of good hair tonics; everyone knows the simple rule that oil rubs and shampoos cure dandruff and dryness; that hairdressers take away extreme oiliness from the hair; that massage and air and general good care will make the hair thick and glossy and are easy to one's looks.

Bad complexion are due to carelessness. No one needs overeat, or eat food down half chewed, or live so sedentary a life that the whole system becomes sluggish, or choose such indigestible foods that no gastric juices could cope with them. Yet these things cause bad complexion, sallowness, pimples, blackheads and a host of other troubles.

Whiskers are bound to come some day, a few wrinkles don't matter. But every skin can be clear, moderately soft and becomingly pale, fine grained and firm looking. Cleansing cream is cheap, soap and hot water, cheap, a good skin is not expensive. A bad skin is more expensive. Think what you don't do than what you do. Which sounds like a paradox but only means that you should cut lightly, exercise moderately, breathe the fresh air outdoors and not use too many skin lotions.

Bitty-Lines in the forehead at 28 years of age may easily result from the bad habit of frowning, or from

Dinner Stories

A western judge one day overheard his hopeful heir in animated conversation with a neighbor's boy, asserted judge.

"Yes, sir," said the hopeful, "I always guaranteed my word."

Curious to know what his heir meant, the judge asked him: "And how do you guarantee your word?"

"Basy," came the ready response. "If he don't like it I'll take it back."

October 8th to 14th is National Homes Beautiful Week, set aside for the purpose of beautifying every home. We believe in this movement.

HOME FURNISHING HINTS

For a Living Room

The Living Room a visitor feels really welcome in has its beautiful furnishings artistically arranged. In the corner of this room both the davenport and the winged armchair urge one to bide a bit, they are so comfortable looking. The lamps that are placed so conveniently blend with their colors and the tone of the rug. The useful secretary suggests coziness, too.

For a Dining Room

Queen Anne Furniture is an excellent choice for any dining room. This particular picture shows a simple, tasteful room that uses a table, six chairs, a roomy buffet and a very convenient china cabinet in this period. A lovely polychrome mirror makes one wait more interesting and the window is charmingly curtained with terry cloth draperies.

For a Bed Room

This bedroom is sunny and soothing all at once. First of all, its suite is attractive; the bed, vanity dresser and chiffonade are in soft grey or cream enamel. Then the ruffled curtains and bedspread, the oval linen rug and the striking Windsor chair are delightfully simple. Who in your family wouldn't welcome such a room?

John McGraw, with nine National league pennants hung in his den, is now prepping his Giant team to capture the third consecutive world's series pennant to add to his collection. Two victories over the rival Yankees have given the team plenty of confidence, but McGraw is aware that good pitching counts as much as confidence. This group of the Giant team was taken since they cinched the National league bunting. McGraw leads Connie Mack as a pennant winner by two flags.

FIGURES IN OKLAHOMA WAR, NOW IN COURT AND BALLOT STAGE

This handsome three-piece suit of gray has a blouse of metal brocade. The cuffs and bottom of jacket are trimmed with bands of the same. Gray cone fashions collar, cuffs, and finishes the bottom of the smart jacket.

Gustav Noske.

As minister of police in the Stresemann cabinet Herr Gustav Noske may become virtually dictator of Germany if threatened revolts break out as a result of the government's action in ending the passive resistance movement in the Ruhr district. Noske is regarded as one of the strong men in the Stresemann cabinet.

Spain now lives under the military directorate of eight generals and one admiral following the revolt which overthrew the existing government. The nine military leaders were the active heads of the revolt. General de Rivera, who led the insurrection, is the new premier.

The fastest time ever made by man on land, sea or air has just been recorded by Lieuts. L. H. Sanderson and Stephen W. Calloway, both of the U. S. navy. They set out to beat the recently established record of 255 miles an hour. While no official time was given out, it is rumored in flying circles that the men made close to 270 miles an hour. They will represent the navy in the Pulitzer trophy races in St. Louis next month.

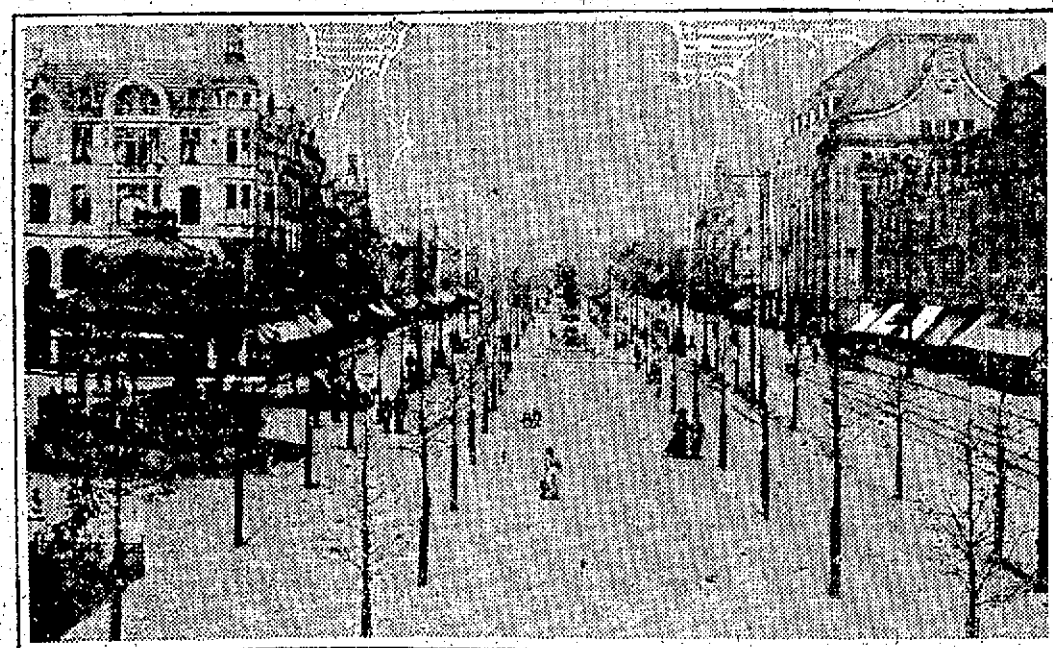

Adolph Hitler.

Herr Von Kahr.

The beginning of a Fascist coup which will end in Fascist control of the Bavarian government is seen in the action of the Bavarian cabinet in making Herr Von Kahr, president of Upper Bavaria, dictator. The action follows the announcement recently by Adolph Hitler, Bavarian Fascist leader, that he had assumed control of the political leadership of the united Fascist organizations. Mobilization of the automobile and cavalry units has been ordered by Von Kahr to handle any situation growing out of Germany's action in the Ruhr.

What started out as a mass meeting of separatists in Dusseldorf in the Ruhr district, became a bloody riot when security police and communists fired upon each other and a score of persons were killed and over a hundred wounded. French authorities blame the police for the trouble.

C. W. Jarvis, trainer of celebrated "Papyrus," exhibiting his wonder horse to thoroughbred lovers at Belmont Park, where horse is quartered.

As "Papyrus," greatest thoroughbred of the year in Great Britain, is getting acclimated at Belmont Park, N. Y., before meeting America's best runner in the coming international match race, sport lovers are trying to "place" this latest British "hope." Great Britain has seen many of its champions blossom brilliantly at home only to suffer defeat in international matches—especially in the U. S. Will "Papyrus" live to "Zev" or "My Own," one of which is booked to meet the British horse later this month for a $100,000 stake and international title.

Gloria Swanson and, insets, Marshal Neilan and Mrs. Adeline Burns.

The threatened alienation of affections suit against Gloria Swanson, famous movie queen, promises to air more of the scandal, real and malicious, of the Hollywood movie colony. Howard E. Watt, twenty-five, has announced publicly that he intends to sue Miss Swanson's mother, forty-five, for breach of promise, and the star herself for killing her mother's love for him. He also says he will file another action against Marshal Neilan. To all of which the threatened action reply "blackmail." They assert that Watt has threatened to expose the alleged friendship of Miss Swanson and Neilan, husband of a famous star, unless restitution for his heartbreak is made.

What Wonderful Feelings of Pride, Contentment, Protection and Happiness Surrounds Ideal Homes

PLANS NOS. 1989-1990.

This little home radiates distinctiveness and even though it had not won first honors in competition with several hundred small home plans, it would to many proud home owners represent the most ideal home ever created. We too, are proud to submit it for your consideration and if you adopt it to build from you may rest assured of having the most attractive, convenient and popular home for its size in the world.

While the roof construction calls for composition material, the roof could be raised and shingles used if so desired.

The exterior is painted white which offers a pleasing contrast to the dark red brick in porch columns and exposed part of fireplace chimney.

Now study the floor plans—aren't they compact and convenient?

To build a home, with love for architecture,
Is one of those God-given gifts that we
At times are given, that many may erect
On earth a model of Heaven above;
For wood and stone themselves can nothing be
Till placed together by the hands of Love.
And then we hear from the celestial dome:
"Ye have done well, for ye have built a home
And comfort, beauty, and protection give
To all those little ones who come to live.
On earth, and grow and love and still again
The world replenish with its need of men."

The above beautiful thought of home calls to mind that each head of a family has an obligation to fulfill, a duty imposed by the Deity, which, if the flame of love burns brightly will be a pleasure to perform,—building a home, not only giving comfort, protection, independence, but makes for continuous happiness.

Home is the place where characters are formed, where the essentials of citizenship are instilled into the minds or hearts of all—where you and yours are taught to look for the beautiful and pure things of life, enjoying fully all the really worth-while pleasures that a unity of family love and devotion can create.

A HOME FIRST should be the motto of every family. Some are prone to slight this duty; many are engrossed in commercial pursuits to the detriment of their family obligations; others are thoughtless. Some set up as their purpose in life "Having a good time" and devote all their time, energy and money to that end. These are wrong conceptions of life's duties. A home is the one thing necessary to fulfill life's work.

Our city needs more home trained citizens, with more attention given to home building, so that our future citizens will have the right conception of life's duties. A Home First—then Commercial Achievement or Pleasure.

This is the message that comes to you from your friends.

SUNDAY

of the great life of humanity and whether we will or not, we touch shoulders and influence other lives, even as we swing in our mighty big wheel with the world. That influence may be for good or for bad but none can avoid being a missionary. Until the reformation the religious missionary work was done by individuals. The world was divided into organized, bodiless, bodiless. I like to think that the world is a little better off, somebody is a little happier, some soul in travail and distress has been given help because I have lived and am living and must go on living. I have a very narrow radius, others, very wide. We can not all be Calvins or Wesleys or Moodys, but our responsibility is the same as theirs. Your responsibility is individual and you can not shift it to your wife's name and pass it on to your preacher. Missionaries in all ages have been persecuted, new ideas scorned, propagandists crucified and they often came to this discouraged conclusion: "I did not win any converts." But the results were there. Today we crucify the forward thinker, the man who has the courage to step outside the beaten path. We scorned him with wrong motives. We arrested him, we adhered to orthodoxy. Thus we Abraham in Chaldean. It has been so with every missionary. These pioneers have sent the Christian world forward and the urge of progress is as strong as the religion of grace and as natural as civilization, science and discovery.

REVIEW OF THE INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
FOR OCTOBER 7, 1923.

Read Gen. 12:18-22.

There are many who believe that God set apart this country as his great laboratory where he would work out the destinies of the Christian religion, where he would make a nation which should be the missionary nation of the world. I am among those who believe this. I do not see how any man can get away from this. But the story of the English in America, how they started the public school system to be paid for in taxes for the purpose of educating the children of the people, and understand the Bible, must point to one conclusion. Harvard College was started for religious purposes.

An eminent Divine was once asked how he came to the conclusion that the United States was a Christian nation while south of us the countries were not. His answer was first brought to him by the New York Herald. He said that the Spaniards who settled the south countries came here for gold, while the English who settled here made the United States, came here for God.

A few months ago we studied the story of Abraham, a character study of the life of this pioneer missionary. Today the study is again framed about the life of Abraham and the urge which forced him to leave his home and his friends and worship God in his own way in a far country. Abraham was called of God for the work he had to do. I have often had young men ask how they could know if they were called to preach. I always tell them that if they were called to preach or to go to foreign lands as a missionary or to do any other thing that they should know what they want to do that it is not possible to do anything else. If a man is intended for the newspaper business he goes into it in spite of his objections and he knows he is a missionary he is so filled with the idea that there is no thought of any other course.

One night I came to an old preacher and said he had received

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.—Sile Thompson, ranchman, and his partner, Bill Derr, discuss their contract for the cattle. They agree that the Hawkins ranch is likely to be sold with the cattle. Sile Thompson, however, is crooked. Charlie Shale, government agent, but they intend to fight it out. Sile Thompson has a brand on a stray calf with a brand not his own, in order to sell the cattle. Sile Thompson discovers them in the act and they kill him. The puncher, however, is satisfied with the Hawkins by hiding the dead man's saddle and bribe there.

Hawkins and his sons, Thorne, Hank and Sam, are worried by the news of the death of Sile Thompson. They decide to accept an invitation to attend recent cattle stealings and decide to force Dolly Warren, a pale horse, to go with them. Dolly Warren, the idea of turning his inquiries away from the Hawkins ranch.

Charlie Shale, however, is determined to force Dolly for himself. Charlie Shale calls on the Hawkins to discuss prices. Dolly keeps him waiting.

together stoopwies, and again bestowed his comprehensive smile upon the roomful before adding, "Jim Thompson came to the agency last Sunday."

"Jim Perret, huh?" Pap spat into the fireplace and shifted his seat. "I don't know any Jim Perret. I had a very pleasant visit."

"Til bet."

"We did. Interesting too. James seemed extraordinarily anxious to land the contract for the next season."

"We've got that sewed up ourselves," Pap said sharply.

Charlie Shale shook his head. "I don't see it that way, Pap. We did it, didn't we?"

"Sure we did. You know how."

Charlie Shale raised a deprecating hand. "I'll tell you exactly what I mean. I've got to get the cattle. Then I'll bring me out. They were there. I said that, other things being equal, you could have the next season's contract."

"I tell you," interrupted Pap, "Lemme finish," cut in Thorn. "You can count on the district attorney. Top Sawyer maybe—if I consent. A while back you said she's have to encourage him so far did you say. His encouragement would have to go?"

"What kind of encouragement does a girl give a man? Hell! bells! You ought to know."

"Dolly, I don't know. A what I don't know another man ain't gonna know. You can gamble on that."

"Look here," Dolly belongs to me! Nobody else! And that goes!" I thought I heard a horse come in," murmured Pap. "See who it is. Hank."

"Hank got up and slid to the window. He stood there looking out. A murmur of voices drifted in from the world without. Hank hipped up his front end and slid to his place. He was smiling maliciously.

"It's Charlie Shade," he said. "He's standing at the kitchen door talking to Dolly. Grinning all over his face. He likes the ladies more than Top."

"Worse is right," mumbled Sim. "Has he ever seen Dolly before?"

"Inquired Pap."

"No," Hank said. "I think so," said Sim. "She ain't been to town more than twice since she came here; and I know he wasn't in town those two times."

"And this is the first time he's been here in two years."

"Thorn nodded sulkily.

"Remember, Sim?"

"I heard what Thorn did," corroborated the other brother.

"Fair enough," said Pap. "I remember that 'other things being equal' by myself. What of it? Ain't everything equal?"

"I've never replied," said the agent. "Not by a jugful. You know yourself, Pap, our terms have always been very liberal—to you. You can slap him, liberally, to do awful things. We do all the work, take all the risk, and all we get half the profits, and that means half, split four ways. Liberal—you've got to use your eyes."

"Oh, I assume enough risk," said Charlie Shade. "You must remember that I have to satisfy Washington."

"Which ain't so mighty hard seeing that Washington is twenty-five hundred miles away," inserted Sim.

"The Federal prison at Leavenworth is considerably nearer. You seem to forget that important fact."

"Aw, whoever heard of an agent getting dinged?" Uncle Sam's blind. Always was and always will be.

"The bandage might slip, Sim. But it's no use worrying about the merits of our respective cases. The fact remains that if it wasn't for me, you wouldn't be any profit but a loss, not a profit. You'd add that much."

"That's true in a way, maybe

Timely Tips for the Auto Owner.

Perfect Ignition Makes Engine Start Easier and Run Better

In a very few weeks the cold weather will be here, and if you intend driving your car during the winter, it will pay you to check up the condition of the Ignition System to make certain that it is in good order before the cold weather sets in.

During the warm weather the gasoline vaporizes very easily, and a weak thin spark will fire the mixture in the cylinders, but when the weather is cold, the mixture taken into the cylinders is not properly vaporized until the engine becomes warm, and a weak spark finds it very difficult to fire poorly vaporized mixture and start the engine.

It is not a difficult operation to put the Ignition in first-class order. First, examine all wires leading from the spark plugs to the Distributor Head, to see that the rubber covering or insulation on the wires has not rubbed through at any point. If you notice the wire is chafing or rubbing at any point, wrap three or four turns of insulating tape around the part that shows signs of rubbing, or better still, fit a new wire.

If the wiring is in good order, then remove the Distributor Head. If the Distributor has rubbing contacts, you will find a series of flat brass segments moulded into the head. See that these contacts are bright and clean, and that the track the Distributor brush runs on is smooth. Rub a little vasoline on the track and polish it with a rag. If the Distributor is of the "jump spark" type, you will find a series of wire pins sticking up around the inside of the head. Brighten the spot on the pin you notice the spark jumps to with a piece of fine sandpaper.

When you take off the Distributor Head, you will notice the Distributor or Rotor Arm. Remove it by pulling off. If the Distributor has a flat metal segment, there will be a small carbon or metal brush on the Arm. Examine to see that it moves freely in its guide and is not sticking, and that the spring underneath the brush is strong enough to press it into firm contact with the brass segments in the Distributor Head. The Contact Breaker is the next part to examine. Turn the engine over slowly, until you see the Contact Points close, then examine to see that they come together squarely. Now turn the engine over slowly again until the points open at their widest gap.

If the engine has run between five and ten thousand miles since the Ignition has been examined, it is practically certain that these points will have burned away to a certain extent, and will require trimming up, and the gap between the points adjusted. Most Contact Points are made from Tungsten metal, which is hard to touch with a file and should be faced up on an oil stone. If you do not happen to possess a stone, then procure one of the magneto files made specially for trimming up Contact Points. It is a difficult operation for an amateur to file the faces of the Contact Points so that they will be exactly parallel, so file them so that the faces of the points are VERY SLIGHTLY rounded. This will insure a good contact. If the points are burned or worn down very much, be careful to note, after you have dressed them up, that there is enough Tungsten of platinum left on the points to make a good contact. If they are worn down so that the steel to which the point is attached shows through, new points will have to be fitted.

Now, with the points held open at their widest point, test the gap between them. This varies slightly on different makes of Ignition Systems, but is generally just about the thickness of a Government postal. Consult the instructions issued by the manufacturer of the Ignition System used on your car, to find out what the exact gap should be, and if possible use the special gap gauge he furnishes, to set the gap.

If the points require adjusting, first loosen the lock-nut, then the adjusting screw can be screwed in and out, enabling you to set the proper gap between the points. When you have the correct gap, tighten the locking nut, then test the gap again to make sure the adjustment did not shift when you tightened the locking nut.

If the engine has seen considerable service, the small spring attached to the Contact Breaker Arm may be a trifle weak. If this spring acts sluggishly, it may not close the Contact Points fast enough at high speeds, and will cause misfiring and loss of power. Test the spring by moving the breaker arm in and out, with the tip of the finger to see that it has enough tension to snap the points into firm contact. If it appears to be weak, then it will be better to fit a new spring.

When you have the points dressed up and adjusted, carefully clean out any dust that may have collected, then replace the Distributor Arm and Head. Now go over all connections on the Coil and Distributor to see that they are clean and tight. Keep the Ignition System free from water, dirt and grease and examine it as shown above, once every five thousand miles, and ignition trouble will rarely worry you.

Last Longer—Less Adjustment

Buick Four-Wheel Brakes

Buick four-wheel brakes not only double the braking efficiency of the new 1924 Buicks by doubling the braking surface, but for the same reason lessen the wear on each brake mechanism in proportion. Buick four-wheel brakes last longer. They require less adjustment and the linings do not wear down as quickly.

Simple in construction and positive in action, Buick four-wheel brakes give added safety under all circumstances. They are of the Buick external contracting type and each brake has a three-quarter wrap or grip instead of the usual half-way grip.

Buick four-wheel brakes are operated with a slight pressure on the service brake pedal. They act quickly, smoothly and easily.

All 1924 Buicks (both fours and sixes) have these new four-wheel brakes. In addition, the 1924 Buicks embody further advancements in power, in construction and in beauty that make Buick more than ever "the Standard of Comparison".

JOHN M. KELLEY WILL SPEAK HERE

Will Take Part in Dairy Program for Rock County—Backs Advertising Plan.

By LEWIS C. FRENCH

Over in Green county dairymen are still scratching their heads and pondering over the value of advertising. John M. Kelley, attorney, dairyman and circus man, told them about the dairy business. Kelley is going to speak in Rock county during the coming winter and when he does, every person interested in agriculture should hear him.

Kelley has a vision. Being connected with Klingling's, he understands the value of advertising. He has followed merchandising enough to know that no product, regardless of merit, succeeds unless advertised. He has seen the success of manufacturers of luxuries such as cosmetics, gum, cigarettes and that of corporations organized to do business in a manner to bring immediate dividends. He is an advertiser. He made "bull" famous, breaking into the headlines of the metropolitan papers about his bull dog at Baraboo and dairy. You imagine a neat store on Broadway, New York, with a good dairy cow in the window, milked by a trim dairymaid? Inside the store Wisconsin dairy products—cheese, butter, milk and cream, all packaged in an attractive manner with a Badger label and grade.

Dairy Advertising. Can you conceive of advertisements in the papers, on the billboards, everywhere, so that people read about Wisconsin dairy products? There are 14,000 people in the New York district. Kelley is sold on the idea of going down to the New York market and selling Wisconsin dairy products.

It is not the average Wisconsin dairyman takes his products to the door of his markets and then turns his back. Kelley is preaching the idea that instead of the dairyman taking his products to the door and there start to do business, Kelley knows that the world chews gum, because it is advertised. Kelley knows millions are spent yearly on advertising. National habit and national buying is controlled and ruled by advertising.

Kelley can understand no reason why dairy products cannot be advertised into popular favor—and a profit for the producer.

Merchandising products. Kelley has watched the manufacturers of "oleo" threaten to wipe out a market for butter. Instead of "oleo" being a substitute for butter—the packers would not want to sell butter as a "substitute" for "oleo." He has watched hard being advertised off the market and has figures on which concerns take the poorest grades of cheese and dairy products and make them up in attractive packages and advertise the product into profit.

"Advertising has stolen the business from the farmers," says Kelley. "Advertising will put it back. The farmer will go home kicking about the price of butter with a package of 'oleo' under his arm and his own dairy cows grazing under the shadow of an 'oleo' sign in his pasture."

Wisconsin is not a great dairy state by accident. The dairy cow has not been elevated to the highest asset of the state without effort. The dairy cow is the backbone of Wisconsin's prosperity. But little has been accomplished to sell her product.

Farmers have made a contribution of their labor—and that of their families—without setting up the standards of labor, declares Kelley. "Farmers have the greatest business in the world—but have not run it as a business. The dairy cow is all right but her management is all wrong. Advertisements at every turn would not be there unless they were making money for the advertiser," further reasons Kelley. The farmer turns his back to the market and dumping it on the market. The business man takes the product, advertises it and makes money. If the farmers would spend the money that is spent to sell a mousetrap or gum—they could not produce enough dairy products to supply the demand."

To Speak Here. Kelley takes delight and it is worth hearing to draw a comparison between the cash spent for advertising, cosmetics, the beauty creams, soap and mud-bay as compared to milk, which builds beauty and health.

In short, Kelley knows that dairy products can be advertised into prosperity. He has a dream of when producers will co-operate to the extent of marketing their products under a trade name and label and spend a few cents advertising to bring dollars in return.

John M. Kelley is going to speak in Rock county, and when he does, a record audience should hear him. There is but one John M. Kelley.

TWO CARLOADS COWS
SOLD TO WESTERN CO.

Two carloads of Wisconsin Holstein grades and purebreds are heading west.

Representatives of the United States Smolting company will use these as foundation stock for recruiting and building 100 herds. The consignment was selected from 22 herds located in Winnebago, Portage, Waupesa and Waushara counties. The order is regarded as another direct result of the transcontinental dairy tour operated in the west last summer by Wisconsin Livestock Advertising Co., Madison.

BUREAU MEETINGS. Farm Bureau meetings have been scheduled in two townships of Rock county next week.

There will be a meeting of Magnolia township at Magnolia Corners on Tuesday, the ninth. J. A. Craig, Janesville, is scheduled to speak.

The meeting for Springdale township will be held in Orfordville Wednesday, the tenth. Cliff Richards, sales expert, from the College of Agriculture, will speak at this meeting. An oyster supper will be served.

EXTEND ESSAY CONTEST. An extension of time has been granted for the writing of the essays "Why Guernseys are the best dairy cows" for southern Wisconsin rural boys and girls. The time for sending in the essays now has been limited to Oct. 12 and the papers should be sent to the Wisconsin Livestock Advertising Co., Madison.

New York—J. Ogden Armour is returning from Europe on the Nautica and stated he was optimistic over European conditions.

"Kelly-Grams"—John M. Kelly

People will buy and use dairy substitutes as long as the substitutes are advertised and the real product is not.

There never has been a product, or there never will be, that has been a great commercial success without grade name. The dairy cow is all right—but the dairy cow management has been all wrong.

Health and beauty comes from the milk can and not from the drug store can.

A woman can go from the city to Chicago and earn from $12 to $50 a week as a house-worker and they call her a domestic. A young man can marry her, take her out to the farm and she works all her life—for nothing, and they call it matrimony.

People love to see beautiful things. Even more men is living in an age when it is said they value their eyesight.

I could come down to Janesville and in about a year depopulate the stores on one side of the river by advertising those on the other. Red is an advertising color, which man, woman or bull has never been able to resist.

The use of the powder puff and lip-stick has been so advertised that it is a habit with the American woman. It has reached a stage where they hold up traffic in any metropolitan city to perform with the powder puff, lip-stick and mirror.

The use of cosmetics has advanced to such a degree by advertising that they will not let the girls in the "Polles" go on the stage painted as much as the women on the streets.

We used to laugh at the Indians putting on war paint. The smears and paints now used by women would put even old Sitting Bull to shame.

England has been guilty of many international crimes but who ever thought they would be sending over ship-loads of mud to plaster the faces of American women.

LIST FOUR COUNTY
LIVESTOCK SALES

Guernseys, Milking Shorthorns and Holsteins to Be Sold Here.

Four livestock sales will be held in the Rock county livestock pavilion on the Janesville fair grounds.

This is a fair indication of the steps being taken by Rock and other southern Wisconsin counties in holding sales jointly. Association auctions. Providing the coming sales are successful, additional sales will be held and the more good auctions held in the counties, the more progress made in the livestock development program.

The first sale here will be on Oct. 16, Tuesday, when both purebred and grade Guernseys will be offered, the grades will be registered bulls going into the ring during the evening. This is a southern Wisconsin association sale.

Need More Guernseys. Rock county has not enough Guernsey herds. There is no question of the merit of this breed for milk milk or cream to sell in the city market. In addition there are few herds of cattle, if any, that are now selling to a better advantage than are Guernseys. There has been as many calls for Guernsey cattle as any other breed and are hard to find.

The two next sales are milking Shorthorns. The Rock county Cow Testing association will sell 44 head of selected animals on Oct. 24, and Harvey Little will offer 40 head on the 25th. These sales and that of Seth Crall, who will dispense his Shorthorn stock on Oct. 26, will attract many buyers. Rock county is best known for its dual-purpose Shorthorns, having not only blue ribbon show ring stock, but also cattle with known production records. There are exceptional quality cattle in these sales.

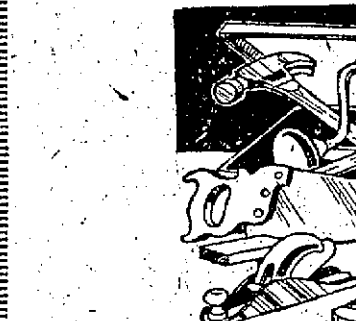

Holstein Auction. Around 75 head of registered Holsteins will be sold Oct. 20, and the sale committee declares it to be "the best consignment in the county's history."

The Holstein association a year ago decided to either improve the quality of the stock and establish high county standards or stop holding sales. The first sale was vastly superior to previous auctions of this association and was considered successful. Even support or stock has been selected for the coming sale and the committee has been able to "pull loose" a dozen or more A. R. O. cows and number of show ring animals.

Iowa Farmers Here. During the last week 42 farmers from Iowa motored to Rock county and made an inspection of several herds with the view of obtaining first hand information about dairying. They wanted to see good herds and learn of the profits from milk.

There is more advance interest in the coming sales and Rock county livestock than ever before, for the reason the show herds added to the list. A list of several hundred names has been submitted by J. C. Nisbet, who managed the show herds, of prospective buyers.

ELECTRIC POWER
TESTS FOR FARMS

Nation Wide Survey to Be Made to Determine Application of "White Coal."

The most comprehensive nationwide survey of the benefits of farm electrification will soon be under way, enlisting the investigating facilities of every university and farm school in the United States, every farm organization, agricultural experiment station and every related United States government department.

This announcement was made at the convention of the Michigan Electric Light Association by G. C. Neff, of Madison, Wis.

"Through this complete investigation we want to determine once and for all whether electricity can be used to good advantage on the 6,500,000 farms in the United States as it is to city industries and city residents," said Mr. Neff. "Thus far it has been one of the most perplexing and difficult problems that has confronted the electric and farm industries in the past several years."

The committee in charge consists of G. C. Neff, J. W. Coville and H. W. Moorehouse, representing the American Farm Bureau; M. E. Sampson, G. C. Neff, J. C. Martin and Arthur Hunting, representing the Wisconsin Electric Light and Power Co.; and J. B. Davidson, American Society of Agricultural Engineers and the University of Wisconsin department of agriculture.

"Will Make Tests." Previous investigations have shown that the biggest problem in solving the electric problem is one of bringing about increased use of electricity on the farms at a rate that will make it profitable for the farmer to use electric service and still pay a profit to the utility supplying the service.

"We all agree that unless both of these conditions can be met, rural electrification should not be supplied. Our investigations to date have convinced us that both these conditions can be met, providing the farmer will use electric service on his farm."

The farmer is not entirely to blame for not using electric service, says the committee. He does not know the various profitable uses he can make of electric service. Electric men themselves do not know to what extent electric service can be used.

This joint committee's initial work, therefore, will be the gathering of information and the carrying on of numerous surveys and experiments at agricultural schools and experimental stations throughout the country to determine to what extent electric service can be profitably used on the farm and devised ways and means of making more efficient use of the service now taken by the farmer.

To Make Tests. Mr. Neff said that the committee expects to do "An Iowa farmer who was raising beef cattle found that it cost him always weighed more and brought greater prices than any of his neighbors' cattle. An investigation showed that the only difference between conditions on his farm and his neighbors' farms was that he had a spring on his farm which supplied his cattle with fresh water. When this farmer moved to another farm, where there was no spring, he found that his cattle did not bring the price they did formerly. He installed electric service which supplied fresh water to the prices. As a result of installing electricity, the farmer's cattle brought top price service this farmer increased his revenue on cattle $400 a year.

"We will present this story to several agricultural schools then to conduct such tests as are necessary to prove or disprove it and to make a report. We expect to present 25 or 30 similar problems to investigators and the results will be broadcasted to the electric and farm industries. By this means and by others we believe both farmers and electric men will be convinced of the benefits of electric service one way or the other."

"We believe that the agricultural industry will be one of the largest users of power in the country. At 6,500,000 farm houses are electrified. Surely one-fourth of the population of this country will not continue to be satisfied with light from kerosene lamps while the rest of us enjoy the pleasure and comforts of modern electric light, nor be satisfied to continue to use old methods of power supply while their neighbors are enjoying the benefits of central station power which has taken the drudgery out of homes and is making industrial machinery more efficient."

JUNIOR CHAMPIONS WILL TRY AGAIN
AT COMING "EXPO"

Champions of yesterday will attempt to repeat their show ring victories when the younger showmen of the state stock show meet at the Wisconsin State Fairgrounds, Oct. 24-26.

Everett Jones of Iowa county, who won the purple ribbon and in addition the blue ribbon for his Shorthorn last year, will be back in the show ring defending his honors again this fall. FARM RENTING IS ON THE INCREASE

Madison—Farm tenancy in the United States increased but one per cent during the last decade, contrary to the general belief that agricultural lands were rapidly passing out of the hands of owner-operators into the hands of tenants. Judging by a report of the Institute for Research in Land Economics and Public Utilities, this body, directed by Dr. Richard R. Elv, well-known economist, is organized specifically to conduct research in land problems.

Basing its conclusions upon 1920 census figures, the Institute concludes that "an increase in tenancy can be expected in the normal development of a nation, a fact neglected by many who look upon tenant farming as something absolutely undesirable."

The report showed that tenants operated approximately one-fourth of the farms of the country in 1880, with a jump to 28 per cent in 1890, and to 35 per cent in 1900. A more gradual increase came in the next two decades, the proportion in 1910 being 37 per cent and in 1920, 38 per cent.

Measured in terms of acreage of land in farms, about 25 per cent of farm land is being cultivated by tenants, according to the Institute.

statement. Measured in terms of improved acreage, tenants are said to occupy almost 35 per cent of the improved land.

The south is shown to have had a steady increase in tenant farms, with some states showing over 60 per cent of farm tenancy.

"The reason must be sought in the prevalence of one crop farming, particularly cotton and tobacco, and in the human factor," the report declared. "Three-fourths of the negro farmers and a large proportion of the whites are renters. The boll weevil and the migration of negro labor to the north is bound to produce great changes in the present renting arrangements."

However, in the last decade seven states in the south have had a decrease or else practically no change in the proportion of tenants to owners. They are: Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and Maryland.

Increase in Tenancy. "Ever since 1880 there has been a steady increase in farm tenancy in the Corn Belt. Missouri alone is an exception. In the Corn Belt, economic factors determining tenancy have had full play. Farms have increased in size ever since 1880. Agricultural machinery has made possible a larger acreage per man. The tractor has had a powerful influence in the same direction. Land is at a premium and its value often inflated, making ownership more difficult. Kansas, Nebraska and the Dakotas have had the most remarkable increases in the proportion of tenants to owners during the last decade. Western Minnesota shares in this increase with the Dakotas. North Dakota had only 14 per cent of tenancy in 1910, but now has over 25 per cent, while South Dakota jumped from 25 to 35 per cent. One crop agriculture, large scale operations and the many farms held for speculation are features that partly explain this rapid rise in tenancy."

Decline in the East. "Notable declines in tenant operated farms have persisted in the eastern states on the Atlantic seaboard from Virginia northward. Only New York had a larger proportion of tenants in 1920 than it had in 1880, and even then in 1920 less than one-fifth of its farms were tenant operated."

A MEMBERSHIP of 2,000 or more in the Rock County Farm Bureau will set-up an organization sufficiently large to give greater service to ALL LINES OF AGRICULTURE IN ROCK COUNTY.

The Bureau is pledged to establish new departments for additional service to the farmers.

Soils and Crops:

An organization can be built up so that one man, competent to do this work, can develop his time and abilities aiding farmers in soils and crops work, the development of more profitable crops, the increasing of the yield and retaining the fertility of the soils.

Livestock Agent:

Rock county needs a livestock agent. Livestock is the foundation of agriculture in Rock county. An agent is needed to develop sales, especially on grade cattle, to push cow testing associations, junior clubs, aid breed associations and put the work of selling Rock county Livestock on a county wide business basis.

Getting Results:

Depends on the support the Farm Bureau has in its reorganization campaign. More than 2,000 members are needed to succeed in the program outlined by different representatives appearing for every department of farming in Rock county.

A membership in the Rock County Farm Bureau means that you believe in Rock county.

The Rock County Farm Bureau will carry out any program that its membership desires. But first a real membership must be had to properly finance any program. The amount of service that can be given is measured by the membership and support.

Speculations Also Rise as to Who Will Be Next Ambassador to Italy.

Washington—Official announcement that George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, and Richard Washburn Child, American ambassador to Italy, have had their resignations accepted by President Coolidge has let loose a flood of political speculation. There are some who believe that the possibility that may grow out of it.

Henry Cabot Lodge, senior senator from Massachusetts and the leader of the conservative wing of the Republican party in the senate, might now find his career at the Capitol by resigning from the senate. He is 73 years old and the senate is in the coming session of congress.

One of the two places made vacant by the department of state's announcement will naturally go to Massachusetts, as Richard Washburn Child is a Massachusetts man. If Mr. Lodge does not resign, there is the possibility that William M. Butler, republican national committeeman from Massachusetts, might be asked to go to London.

His acceptance would mean his own elimination from the republican senatorial race, thus paving the way for Channing Cox, present governor of Massachusetts, who is credited with a desire to go to the senate. The republicans in the Bay state are not confident that Oliver Coolidge will be on the ticket. They are certain that they consider certain their senatorial candidate will be swept into victory on the same occasion against Senator David Walsh.

It is also possible that the republicans of Massachusetts would feel this a good time to assure the election of two republicans to the senate. As the election is in 1925, it is a long time to wait for a victory for Mr. Lodge.

Charles H. Warren also mentioned. Aside from the Massachusetts situation, the only likely man to be appointed as American ambassador to Italy is Charles B. Warren, who after returning from a splendid service as American ambassador to Japan, is now in the United States. Mr. Warren, of Detroit, who after returning from a splendid service as American ambassador to Japan, is now in the United States. Mr. Warren, of Detroit, who after returning from a splendid service as American ambassador to Japan, is now in the United States.

Former Gov. Frank Lowden of Illinois is another man who, being denied the post of ambassador to Italy, was originally tendered the place informally by President Harding but declined on account of obstacles which are believed to have been since removed.

Franklin Lawrence's Prediction. All the men mentioned are fully capable of meeting the financial requirements of the American embassies abroad.

For the resignations of both Mr. Harvey and Mr. Child. When this correspondent on April 27, last, wrote a dispatch saying Ambassador Harvey was about to resign, Mr. Child was also itching to get back into the political arena. Mr. Child, who is a native of New York, is a native of New York, is a native of New York.

Child Might Get U. S. Post. The acceptance of the Harvey resignation is not a surprise, therefore, as the word has been given for the resignation of Mr. Child. When he and Mr. Harvey stayed at the White House recently as the guests of the president and Mrs. Coolidge, it was suspected that Mr. Child was in the line for the forthcoming campaign, was assured fact. There are rumors, however, that some of the "irreconcilables" want him to go to Italy, as he is a native of New York, is a native of New York, is a native of New York.

Half Million Saw National Parks. Washington—Nearly a million and a half persons visited the country's national parks and monuments during the first ten months of the year. The interior department announced today that this was an increase of more than 200,000 over the official count for last year.

Rocky Mountain Park, Colorado, again led the list with 218,000 visitors, while Yellowstone park was second with 133,352 and showed an increase of 40,000.

Madison—Dr. O. H. Etkin, state veterinarian since 1912, has been appointed district manager of the Mutual Trust Life Insurance company. It was learned today.

On Four-Wheel Brakes

There is little difference mechanically between two-wheel brake and four-wheel brake mechanisms.

Front-wheel brakes are merely added capacity, of conventional design. All four brakes are operated by the foot pedal.

The emergency brakes on rear wheels or transmission, operated by the hand lever, are retained in all four-wheel brake systems.

Controversy already exists between four-wheel brake advocates as to the relative merit of external or internal types of brake pressure on front wheels.

The duplication of parts, added weight, and increased friction of four-wheel brakes are common knowledge.

If four-wheel brakes were necessary, safe, and simple in operation, their existence would be justified, even with these impedimenta.

The factory makes proper adjustment of clearances between brake linings and drums.

After the factory ships the car, its responsibility ceases for brake adjustments, and the responsibility is shifted to the owner.

Electric starters, battery ignition, and vacuum tanks are acknowledged developments in the evolution of the automobile. They are built complete, encased in housings by the factory, are practically automatic and require few adjustments. Four-wheel brakes are in an entirely different category.

Numerous dealers and factory branch salesmen selling four-wheel brake cars, are already advising buyers that the front brakes may be disconnected, if they are not wanted. This would mean, of course, that the extra weight and impedimenta would be carried around uselessly.

Other front-wheel brakes are adjusted for such weak pressure that they cannot lock the front wheels, and the brakes are thus merely camouflage.

Four-wheel brakes will cause more trouble and accidents in a month than they will prevent in a year.

In fact, the Rolls-Royce Company states that "they show such decidedly dangerous disadvantages that they are considered unsafe to put in the hands of the general public, and are not nearly the equal of the powerful, efficient, lasting, and easily equalized brake design now employed in our design."

Four-wheel brakes have been a bone of contention in England since 1910, and yet today only 5 or 6 of the 150 odd English makes of cars use them at all. Several manufacturers use them as optional equipment, or furnish them on one of their models only.

Adherents of four-wheel brakes claim that they (1) permit quicker stopping and (2) prevent skidding. These are the only claims made for four-wheel brakes. With front-wheel brakes fully applied, quicker stopping is possible. This is not denied.

That quick stopping which locks the front wheels is an advantage, is vigorously denied. Such stopping is positively dangerous, because steering control is immediately lost.

The claim that four-wheel brakes prevent skidding and sliding is denied. No matter what kind of brakes are used, skidding will occur if wheels are locked before the momentum of the car is offset by the resistance of the road or pavement, whether dry or wet.

Skidding on wet pavements can be reduced to the minimum, with either two- or four-wheel brakes, only by slowing down speed and gentle brake pressure with clutch engaged.

Disadvantages of Four-Wheel Brakes

Against the only advantage (?) of four-wheel brakes, namely, quicker stopping, there are six serious disadvantages which make them mechanically impracticable, dangerous, uncomfortable, and expensive to owners, as follows:

1. Danger of Accidents. With permission, we quote from a recent circular of the Rolls-Royce Company to their dealers, upon which we cannot improve:

"Basically, the fault with front-wheel brakes lies in the danger of front-wheel skids, which are uncontrollable and consequently vastly more dangerous than a rear-wheel skid."

"It must be appreciated, first of all, that for their ability to steer the car the front wheels depend on their rolling motion. When front wheels cease to roll they lose all power to steer the car, which slides straight ahead on a flat road, or into the ditch if on a crowned or cambered road."

"When the brakes are used in an emergency it is of primary importance that the direction of the car should be under control; that is, that the car can be steered from the time that the brakes are applied until it is brought to a complete stop."

"When an obstacle suddenly presents itself (as in night driving) the driver's instinct is to immediately apply the brakes as hard as possible."

"If, under these conditions, the front wheels are suddenly locked, disaster may overtake the driver, through inability to control the car's direction, even though it may stop before meeting the obstacle."

"In traffic driving the ability to dodge—to control the direction of the car—is of almost equal importance with the ability to stop."

"On a wet or sprinkled city street, granting that the front-wheel brakes were perfectly equalized, the car would slide straight ahead unable to take advantage of traffic conditions, either right or left."

"If the brakes were not perfectly equalized, immediately the pressure was applied, the front wheels would take on a skid, which would be uncontrollable, in whichever direction the equalization of the brakes was faulty."

"In traffic driving, under most favorable conditions (perfectly equalized brakes and dry pavement) a sudden application of the brakes checks the car so precipitately that cars following have been known to crash into the car ahead, causing a rear end wreck through not having stopping room and time."

"It is, of course, obvious that front-wheel brakes present double the difficulty of keeping the brakes properly equalized."

"Aside from the above apparent defects in front or four-wheel braking, there is the stiffening effect on the steering to take into consideration when the brakes are applied, and the drag on the steering unless the braking effects on both wheels are absolutely equalized. This, of itself, constitutes a serious disadvantage reflected in the handling of the car."

2. Adjustments by Owner. Brakes must be properly adjusted, lubricated, and kept free from dirt, gravel, and foreign substances, to prevent unequal pressure of brakes and possible locking of front wheels. The burden of this responsibility rests on the owner, not on the factory.

3. Added Impedimenta and Lubrication. Four-wheel brakes double the number of parts in the braking mechanism, add about one hundred pounds of unsprung weight to the front end of the car, and create from twenty to thirty additional places (mostly inaccessible) requiring lubrication which must be applied by hand.

4. Decreased Car Efficiency. The added weight, extra parts, and increased friction resulting from four-wheel brakes decrease to some degree the efficiency of the car. Poorer acceleration, reduced hill-climbing ability, and increased gasoline consumption result.

5. Harder Steering and Control. The increase in unsprung weight, added parts, and friction necessarily increase the strength required to steer the car and to operate the brakes.

6. Expense of Maintenance. Extra service work in repairing, adjusting, and relining brakes puts the car in the shop oftener and increases the expense of maintenance.

Patent Situation

Four-wheel brakes have been in existence for about twenty years, during which time thousands of patents have been taken out in Europe and the United States, many of which have expired, and it is very doubtful if there are any basic patents preventing the use of four-wheel brakes.

European Experience

European manufacturers have experimented with four-wheel brakes for two decades. English manufacturers generally refuse to use them, although there are a few exceptions.

French manufacturers use them more generally, but many cars are equipped with "servo mechanisms," which are an added attachment intended to prevent locking of front wheels, insure equalization, ease the pedal pressure, etc., but this device introduces further complications of weight, lubrication and expense.

Trade Authorities

AUTOMOTIVE INDUSTRIES—July 12, 1923

"In some cases the layout is such that the act of steering tends to release the front-wheel brake, rendering it less effective when the wheels are cramped. If, with this arrangement, steering is made harder, or the brakes less effective on a curve, or when the vehicle must make a sudden turn—as it must often do in an emergency—there is grave reason to doubt whether the braking is any safer with four- than with two-wheel brakes."

MOTOR WORLD—June 6, 1923

"If necessary precautions are not taken, skidding is liable to be more frequent and more serious than with rear brakes only."

Studebaker's Position

Studebaker research and engineering departments have been studying, experimenting with, and testing four-wheel brake mechanisms for two years.

These tests merely convince us that four-wheel brakes are unnecessary, mechanically impracticable, and dangerous in the hands of unskilled drivers.

The 1924 model Studebaker cars are equipped with brakes on the rear wheels only. The foot pedal operates the external contracting brakes and easily locks both wheels.

The hand lever operates the internal expanding brakes, and likewise locks the wheels easily.

The foot brakes are used in driving, and the hand brakes to hold the car still when parked on grades, also in emergencies, if necessary.

Studebaker brakes are safe, simple, and practicable. There are no more reliable brakes in use on any automobiles.
